'FLY-BY-NIGHT' BUS LINES DESCRIBED AT I.C.C. HEARING

H. E. Barber Says 'Wild Catting' Competition Is So Bad It Couldn't Be Any Worse.'

THROAT CUTTING' TACTICS DEPLORED

Railroad Official's Urge Co-ordination of Transportation Systems for Benefit of All.

The Interstate Commerce Commission bus and rail co-ordination hearing closed its St. Louis sessions today, two days ahead of schedule, completing the first phase of a national investigation designed to result in recommendations for Federal supervision over motor busses and trucks and their co-ordination with rail facilities.

Testimony at Hotel Coronado concluded with evidence presented by H. E. Barber, president of the Egyptian Transportation Co., the only independent bus operator to testify at the St. Louis hearing, who painted a gloomy picture of his competition, said Federal regulation was imperative, and charged the existence a "wildcat" with headquarters in Chicago and ramifications in St. Louis and other cities.

There are four fly-by-night bus lines operating out of Chicago," Barber said. "They have ticket offices in St. Louis and sell tickets to Los Angeles at a low price. This starts off all right, but on a long stretch of road in Missouri or Kansas the driver pretends his bus is disabled, hides in the woods and leaves his passengers in the lurch. After they have disappeared he picks up the passengers, ready to work the market again."

Gives No Names.

Barber was unable to furnish names of these companies, stating they were not to change overnight and that they shifted their drivers from place to place. Other established bus operators indicated they had profit testimony at the Kansas City hearing, which continues Friday.

Barber said his company started with $10,000 in 1929 and increased its assets to $60,000 in 1928, covering about 1,000 miles of territory and running its main lines between St. Louis and Southern Illinois points. But competing lines, some of a "wildcat" variety, others run on the railroads, have cut revenue so that his company is just about break even, he said.

Stressing the need for Federal regulation, Barber said three companies in each state with no passenger traffic within sight of each other constituted a combination right along those lines.

"It's terrible, there's no sense to it at all. If we tried to make it any worse we couldn't make it any worse," Barber concluded, after reading witness at George Washington Inn; He is in his seventies; She is in her thirties.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The romance of a member of Congress and a former head waitress in the hotel at which he lived materialized today in the announcement of the engagement of Representative Timberlake of Colorado and Mrs. Roberta Wood Elliott, a widow, of Salisbury, N. C. The wedding takes place here Dec. 22.

Timberlake is in his seventies, while the bride-to-be's age was given at the Capitol as in the early thirties. Timberlake has been married twice previously and Mrs. Elliott was married once, her husband dying about a year ago. Timberlake's second wife also died about a year ago. The Representative met Mrs. Elliott when she was head waitress at George Washington Inn, used by many members of Congress. She has a young daughter, Mrs. R. B. Wood of Salisbury, N. C.

TELLS OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Man Held by Police Says He Took $400 From Western Union. Police are investigating the story of a man booked as Arthur J. Carpenter of Columbus, O., who went to the main offices of the Western Union Telegraph Co. at Ninth and Chestnut streets last night and announced that he wished to surrender and take his punishment for an embezzlement from the company.

Carpenter said he left Newport, Tenn., May 23, 1929, taking $400 of the company's money collected by him while in charge of the telegraph office there. Police records show no complaint against Carpenter.

The lively career of Henry Ronsek, 28 years old, has him again in the hands of police today, this time on complaint of his wife that he left her alone in their home, 2328 Montgomery street, without any clothing or even any hair.

Mrs. Ronsek wore borrowed clothes and a wig to North Market Street Station. She said Ronsek dressed her Saturday night, tied her hands, cut her hair, took her clothing and left. At 7 p. m. yesterday Ronsek parked an automobile outside and walked up to the desk sergeant.

"I'm Henry Busch," he said. "Do you want me?" The acting sergeant was Patrolman Richard Hake, formerly of the Bertillon Bureau, who had met "Busch" before. Ronsek was escorted to a cell. In his automobile were found 12 dresses and other apparel for women. He said he threw the hair away.

"I've been working hard," he told Capt. Hoagland, exhibiting calloused hands. "But that girl didn't treat me right. Everything would be all right for a while—and then she'd begin going around to beer joints. So I tried to fix her so she couldn't."

Ronsek's domestic difficulties were not his first. Hard luck he has had by his own account. In December, 1927, he was released from Chester, Ill., penitentiary after serving three years of a life term for bank robbery upon a convict's affidavit that Ronsek was not one of the robbers.

A month later Ronsek was shot seven times by Deputy Constables when he entered a Florissant saloon with a key at night. Ronsek, held for burglary, insisted he was being put "on the spot" for excessive knowledge of bootlegging. Charges against him were dismissed, and assault warrants were issued against the deputies. The charges were dropped last January with the explanation that Ronsek could not be found.

DETECTIVE KILLED, SLAYER SHOT BY VICTIM'S PARTNER

Omaha (Neb.) Officer Attempted to Arrest Two Bank Robber Suspects; Second Caught, By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 18.—Attempting to place a pair of bank robber suspects, wanted in Kansas and Nebraska, under arrest, cost the life of a detective sergeant yesterday and one of the suspects is thought to be dying of wounds suffered in the fight.

Detective Sergeant Fred Kruger, known as "Gum," died in police station house a few minutes after he had been wounded by Fletcher Moore, wanted by Kansas authorities for alleged participation in bank robberies at Hiawatha and Netawaka, Kan. Moore was seriously wounded by Kruger's partner as he sought to escape.

Kruger and Detective Sergeant Ray Strong accosted Moore and Chester Gore, a companion, as they left a rooming house in the company of a woman. As the detectives sought to place the trio in an automobile, Moore drew a pistol and fired at Kruger, sending a bullet through his abdomen. Strong then struck Gore on the head and started in pursuit of Moore, who had cleared a nearby fence, and shot him down as he raced across a lawn.

Gore, in the meantime had revived and fired three shots at Strong, none of which took effect. Then he leaped into another automobile with the woman and sped away. Gore drove to the home of a relative of the woman, where she left the car and he drove on. Gore later was captured shortly after he had entered the Fort Omaha army post in an attempt to find a hiding place. Gore was said to have confessed the Hiawatha robbery and he and Moore were identified by the bank officers.

Nebraska Attorney's Action Brings Warning Against Effort to Block Inquiry. By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 18.—Warnings against efforts to block its inquiry into Nebraska's recent senatorial campaign greeted witnesses called today before the Senate Investigating Committee.

Senator Gerald N. Nye, North Dakota, chairman, and Senator Porter H. Dale, Vermont, member, agreed that witnesses who evaded subpoenas would be called to Washington to testify after several summoned yesterday failed to appear.

Nye said any attempts to intimidate witnesses would be dealt with vigorously. Miner S. Bacon, Lincoln attorney, who admitted he tried to get Miss Estelle Lyon, a stenographer, to sign an affidavit that she was mistaken in previous testimony given the committee.

W. F. Adams, Adams County farmer and president of the Nebraska Taxpayers' League, said he had been coerced into signing affidavits repudiating his organization's power initiative petitions by threats he would be called before the Senate Committee. The proposal was successful at the election. E. E. Blinfield, member of the State Legislature, testified that he had advised Adams to sign the affidavits.

TULSA BOOKMAKER FREED BY KIDNAPERS

George Hurford Put Out of Auto at Chetopa, Kan.; Taken to St. Louis, He Thinks.

TULSA, Ok., Nov. 18.—George Hurford, wealthy Tulsa bookmaker, who was kidnapped Sunday night, was found unharmed today at Chetopa, Kan., where he had been arrested as a suspicious character after having been put out of his captors' automobile. Chief of Police Garland Marrs was notified by two detectives whom he had sent to Chetopa.

The detectives reported Hurford said he was blindfolded after being whisked away from his country estate near here and did not know where his kidnappers took him, but that he had been driven to near St. Louis.

Hurford told the officers, they said, that he hadn't "the slightest idea" of the purpose of the abduction.

Hurford told a reporter by telephone from Chetopa that he wasn't "hurt a bit" and that he would return to Tulsa with the detectives, into an automobile in the presence of a caretaker, a Negro maid, and Mrs. Hurford, whose life was threatened when she pleaded to be allowed to accompany her husband.

No report of the kidnapping was made to either the County Attorney or the Sheriff.

Earl Franks, Chief of Detectives, who questioned Mrs. Hurford last night, said he was informed the pair returned from a fishing trip late Sunday to encounter two men in their living room, armed with sawed-off shotguns.

According to Mrs. Hurford's account, as related by Franks, one of the men said: "We want you to come with us, George. We'll bump you off if you don't keep quiet."

When the men disappeared in a car, Mrs. Hurford said, she ran to a telephone, but found the wires cut. J. F. Fung, the caretaker, confirmed the story of the abduction but said darkness prevented his reading the license number on the automobile.

Hurford is the president and was one of the organizers of the Magic City Kennel Club, one of the largest dog racing tracks in the United States. Hurford is regarded as the one man in this section who can and will back and pay any race he might accept. Previous threats of robbery and kidnapping induced him, some time ago to hire a bodyguard, who did not accompany him on the fishing trip Sunday.

Six Months for Profanity on Radio.
By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 18.—Robert Gordon Duncan, self-styled "Oregon Wildcat," was sentenced yesterday to six months in the county jail and fined $500 for using obscene language over radio station KVEP. John J. Jeffrey, his attorney, served notice of appeal and Federal Judge R. S. Bean set bail at $2500. Duncan made 16 or 20 radio speeches last April and May, attacking chain stores and prominent Portland and Oregon business men.

DELAY IN BUILDING 6-INCH GUN CRUISERS

Plans for Short Session Include Battleship Modernization and 10,000-Ton Craft.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Plans for a modified naval building program that will not involve for at least a year the controversial six-inch gun cruisers allowed under the London naval treaty were made known today by Chairman Britten of the House Naval Committee.

Britten will confer with Secretary of the Navy Adams and members of the Naval General Board tomorrow regarding the program, which constitutes one of the major legislative proposals before Congress at the short session.

Although the cost of the construction program remains indefinite, Britten said outlays for work on new destroyers and submarines would be requested along with $29,793,750 for the modernization of the battleships Idaho, New Mexico and Mississippi.

In addition, at least $35,000,000 is to be requested for continuation of construction on 10 10,000-ton cruisers authorized under the 15 cruiser program.

The program, he said, is to be laid on a year-to-year plan, until it is determined what is to be done with the remainder of the tonnage allowed in six-inch gun cruisers under the London treaty.

He said naval experts were studying proposals of Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, to make light aircraft carriers capable of accommodating 30 to 40 airplanes of the light cruiser tonnage.

"Work on the Mississippi, Idaho and New Mexico, authorized in 1924," he said, "will keep about 3000 men busy for a year or more, and at the same time place the ships in first-class fighting condition. The modernization is permitted under the Washington arms agreement and in no way contravenes the London naval treaty."

VANDERBILT YACHT LAUNCHED

Vessel Built in Germany Is Described as "Cruiser."

By the Associated Press.

KIDLAK, Nov. 15.—William K. Vanderbilt's new motor yacht, the Alva, was launched in the Germania yards today. The vessel, whose interior fixtures represent the last word in luxury, has a displacement of 3500 tons and in the opinion of some yachtsmen here deserves the designation of cruiser rather than motor yacht.

The engines will develop 4200 horsepower and the vessel will attain a speed of 16 knots. Capt. Kenneth G. Castleman, American naval attache, attended the launching.

Rounding Up Wild Elk Herd.

By the Associated Press.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Nov. 18.—Game Wardens are tired of chasing wild elk from farms near the Elk Hills oil country. For six months wardens have attempted to keep the Elk, protected by State law, from foraging on cotton plantations, alfalfa fields and corn crops. Yesterday the wardens started to round up the herd of 250 to 300 elk and will corral them to save farmers from further loss.

MENT MAY BE ARRANGED

REPUBLICANS TO OPEN PERMANENT BUREAU

Robert H. Lucas to Be in Charge of Washington Headquarters.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The Republican party will maintain a permanent organization in the capital from now on in preparation for the campaign preceding the 1932 election.

This was decided at conferences of party leaders with President Hoover yesterday. Most of the officers of the Republican National Committee were at the White House, but Senator Fess of Ohio, the chairman, was not.

He was absent from the conferences immediately after fresh speculation on the possibility of his intention to retire. However, late in the evening he issued a brief statement to the effect he had been advised the conference would be held and had not considered his presence necessary as they dealt with office affairs requiring only the attention of the officers who talked with the President.

The definite result of the consultation was that Robert H. Lucas of Kentucky, executive director of the National Committee, will have charge of the permanent party headquarters, assisted by George De B. Keim, secretary of the National Committee, and James L. West, director of publicity. This is the group which, with Senator Fess in charge of the work, just before the congressional elections.

Those who met at the White House said their principal business there related to financial affairs. Joseph R. Nutt, Treasurer, reported that after furnishing funds for congressional and senatorial campaigns, the National Committee now had a balance of approximately $7000 with no outstanding obligations.

With Nutt at the White House were James Francis Burke, committee counsel; Jeremiah Milbank, Eastern treasurer; Lucas and West.

The permanent setup has been urged upon the President by many of party leaders. They have pointed to the similar Democratic organization which was in action here long before the last election, under the management of Jouett Shouse and Charles Michaelson. Several Republicans have expressed the view that the aggressive Democratic publicity campaign conducted by Michaelson was no small factor in his party's election gains.

PLANE WRECKED IN SNOWSTORM

National Parks Pilot Hurt in Crash at Great Salt Lake.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 18.—A thick blanket of snow covered Utah today, spread by a storm yesterday in which an airplane was wrecked, the pilot injured, a wood-chopper trapped in a snowdrift, and two drivers driven to shelter.

Ray Peck, pilot for the National Parks Airways, crashed his plane on the shore of the Great Salt Lake during the storm. Cut and bruised he wandered for hours in the snow before finding his way to a farm house. Fear was felt for the safety of Allan Larson, 25 years old, woodchopper who was last seen walking in a snowstorm between Thistle Junction and Springville.

How Rudy Vallee Chose
"Vagabond Lover" Beauties

Radio and Movie Idol Ex-

Influenced Selections in Casting of Famous Film.

Fresh from Hollywood triumphs, Rudy Vallee once more takes up "sex" at his own smart night club, the Villa Vallee.
Here the idol of screen and "mike" watches the enchanting women dance by, their bright hair shimmering beneath the scintillant lights. Always an admirer of pretty hair, Vallee finds it essential to feminine loveliness.

Particularly does he feel that exquisite hair influenced the selection of the charming girls who applied for work in his picture.
"The Vagabond Lover," whose wives were selected, says Rudy,
"were very attractive. But in each case what made their appearance seem so glorious was the fascinating lustre of their hair."

Naturally, not all women have beautiful hair to begin with. But in everyone's hair lurk hidden fires which, when lit, impart a shimmering radiance. Because it contains the merest hint of henna, the marvelous liquid shampoo called Hennafoam will do just this.
A few regular usages of Hennafoam enlivens the dullest hair with dazzling, alluring beauty.

Without altering the color one fraction of a shade, Hennafoam stirs the hair-tones to burnished lustre. Each separate strand awakens to new life and glows with glorious health. Hair that was once lank and impossible to arrange prettily gains new crispness through the use of Hennafoam. Because this remarkable shampoo rids the scalp pores of excess oil and clogging dust, lifeless hair loses its wilted look and responds vigorously to the comb.

Do not hesitate because of the henna! There is only the tiniest trace of it in the shampoo—just enough to give sheen and softness to the hair regardless of color, whether blonde, brown, or bronde.
Made of health-giving vegetable oils, Hennafoam is so safe and pure that many mothers use it on their children's hair.

FORMER KING HUSSEIN OF THE HEDJAZ DIES

Arab Leader Who Supported Allies in World War Succumbs in Exile.

By the Associated Press.
BAGDAD, Iraq, Nov. 18.—Former King Hussein of the Hedjaz, romantic figure in the Arab revolt against Turkey in which Lawrence of Arabia played so prominent a part in the World War, died today in exile on the Island of Cyprus.

His son, King Feisal of Iraq, was racing to his side, having received word of his grave condition.

Little was known of Hussein until, largely influenced by Lawrence of Arabia in 1917, he led a revolt against Turkey and declared the independence of his country with himself as King.

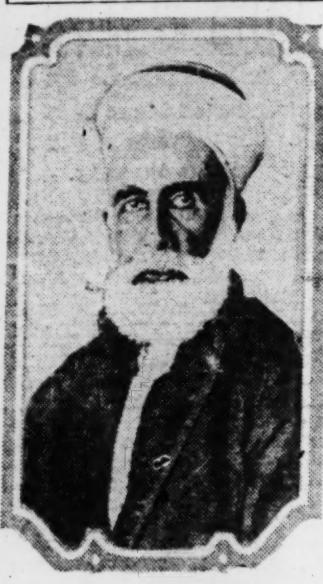

Hussein threw his support to the Allied Powers in the World War. Thrones were found for his sons, Feisal and Abdullah, who now rule Iraq and Trans-Jordan, but fate was not so kind to Hussein himself. In 1924 Ibn Saud, the Wahabi chieftain whose power had been growing rapidly, revolted and drove Hussein from his throne and into exile.

After the war Hussein became King of the Hedjaz and later assumed the title of Caliph, which aroused the enmity of Ibn Saud.

Ibn Saud in 1924 raised the banner of revolt and marched on Mecca in force, inciting revolts on the way. Meanwhile the Government, with Hussein's family, had been removed to Jeddah, the Port of Mecca on the Red Sea, where he appealed to both the British Government and the League of Nations for help.

In October, 1924, King Hussein abdicated both the Hedjaz and the

ARAB EX-KING DIES

TAMMANY MEN ON TRIAL IN JOB SALE

Healy and Tommany Charged With Selling Seat to Ewald for $10,000.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—General Sessions Judge William Allen was the first witness today in the trial of Martin J. Healy and Thomas J. Tommany, on charges of having sold a Magistrate's appointment to George F. Ewald in 1927 for $10,000. Judge Allen was called to the stand to tell of his activities as former leader of Ewald's Tammany district, now headed by Healy, after opening addresses by Special Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd and Sydney A. Syme, defense counsel.

"If someone in the district aspired to a political position while I was leader he would come to me and if I appended the calling card of Tammany I would advance the claim of my candidate to Tammany Hall," Judge Allen testified. "Sometimes I'd get the appointment and sometimes I wouldn't."

Todd asked, "Was there ever anyone appointed from your district of whom you did not approve?" "Not to my knowledge," was the response.

"How long were you leader?" "Seven years."

John Mara, another Tammany district leader, was the next witness and was questioned along the same lines.

The political phase of the case, which figured in the recent gubernatorial campaign, does not enter into the trial, Todd admitted the joint.

"But the two defendants are on trial," he said, "and it does happen that they are politicians and theirs is a political racket. It is essential to prove why the Ewalds did pay $10,000 to them."

Eleven men or retired business men and one civil engineer, each professing an ignorance of political methods, are on the jury.

Todd won an important point before the beginning of testimony when Justice McCook upheld his right to prove that a "system" exists in the manner of appointing City Magistrates. He said that as a district leader Healy had great political power and that recommendation of his for appointments to public office was tantamount to appointment.

Syme charged the Republican party was using Healy and Tommany as political footballs "to save the face of Charles G. Tuttle," defeated for Governor in the last election.

Syme contended that neither Healy nor Tommany would have been foolish enough to openly transact "the $10,000 loan" to Healy if it had any relation to Ewald's appointment. Neither denied the loan was made. Syme said, but it was a legitimate transaction.

ASSISTANT NAVY SECRETARY'S AUTO SEARCHED FOR LIQUOR
Official Tells "Medicine Ball" Cabinet of Experience on Road to Baltimore.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The story of his automobile having been searched for liquor was told today by Assistant Secretary Jahncke of the Navy. With several other cars, his was held up on the Baltimore-Washington highway two months ago. Telling of it after the usual medicine ball game at the White House this morning, Jahncke said he had suffered no inconvictions. He made no protest.

"I do not know whether the officials of the State or Federal employees," he said. "I did not tell them who I was. My chauffeur has specific instructions not to reveal my identity as an official of the Government. I have long since forgotten the matter and consider it just one of the incidents of life."

CITY DENIED RATE REHEARING

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 18.—The Missouri Supreme Court today denied a rehearing of the case in which the rate base valuation of the St. Louis Public Service Co. was fixed at $63,500,000 and the 8-cent fare was approved in June, 1928.

The court, Oct. 14, last, approved the findings of the State Public Service Commission as to the valuation and rate of fare, but the city sought a rehearing on the ground that the court had overlooked certain points raised by the city. Since the institution of this case, street car fares in St. Louis have been further increased to the prevailing rate of 10 cents cash, or a weekly ticket good for 12 rides for $1.

Move to Eric Curtis' Son Dropped.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—An eviction notice to force Harry K. Curtis, son of the Vice President, and his wife from their apartment was canceled in Municipal Court today. A court bailiff and four men sought to move the furniture out of the Curtis apartment yesterday on a writ charging that a vice producer's son owed $887 rent. Mrs. Curtis called her husband in Washington, borrowed $400 and the bailiff agreed to await further court developments. Curtis, arriving from Washington today, said it was all the result of a dispute with his landlord.

Afraid of Losing Business.
Cross-questioning Dunham, Attorney W. M. Borders Jr., for the defense, got his statement that the members of the firm had been "a little bit scared" by the prospect that the National Order Buying Co. entered the field. The three members of the firm went to work for the National Order Buying Co., but Murray Watkins and Russell Walker have quit the National, Wallace Potts still remaining as manager of the St. Louis branch.

Borders referred to Potts' testimony that he received $10,000 a year in his present position with the National Order Buying Co. and that Watkins got $7,500 and Walker $5,400 a year while they were with the National. The attorney said he could prove that the three were carried on the books of the National Order Buying Co., at its headquarters in Columbus, O., at a higher salary than that named—$500 a month more in Potts' case, he said. His clients would have been justified in their refusal to deal with the company.

MELLON GRANDNEPHEW SECRETLY WED A YEAR

Invitations Issued, However, to Marriage Ceremony Set for Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 18.—Wed in a secret ceremony more than a year ago, W. L. Mellon Jr., grandnephew of the Secretary of the Treasury and member of one of Pittsburgh's most prominent families, and his wife, formerly Grace Rowley, also of Pittsburgh, today were to decide with other members of their families whether plans for a formal wedding ceremony were to be carried out.

Details of the secret marriage were made last night while preparations were being made for the wedding set for tomorrow. Mrs. Mellon said she and her husband had eloped and because "Mother and father were anxious to have all our friends see us married," they decided to go through with the formal ceremony. "Then we thought better of it," she said, "and we told them the whole story today."

Mrs. Rowley disclosed that the first information concerning the secret marriage received from the minister who performed the ceremony at Wellsburg, W. Va., Nov. 16, 1929.

The Rev. Dr. Milton M. Allison, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Wellsburg, Mrs. Rowley said, read newspaper accounts of plans for the wedding ceremony scheduled for tomorrow. He communicated with a Pittsburgh newspaper, she said, and gave the information concerning the ceremony he performed. His wife was witness to the marriage.

After learning of the Rev. Mr. Allison's statement, Mrs. Rowley said, the young pair readily admitted their previous marriage and explained that they had agreed to keep it a secret until after their second marriage and honeymoon.

Mrs. Rowley said her daughter, who is 19 years old, was at the Rowley home today and that Mellon was at the home of his father. Young Mellon is 20.

An announcement by Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Rowley said their daughter and Mellon were married in Wellsburg, W. Va., Nov. 16, 1929.

The past week has been full of events in honor of the young people.

The bride's father is a Pittsburgh business man.

WOMAN HELD UP THROWS HER PURSE OVER A FENCE

After Robber, Alarmed by Her Screams, Has Fled, She Recovers Her Pocketbook.

Miss Maud Stubblefield, 6732 Highland Avenue, threw her purse over a fence and screamed when a man held her up near her home last night. The robber ran and she recovered her pocketbook.

Police called to an apartment at 6181 Delmar Boulevard when neighbors reported a burglar, arrested a man who ran from a nearby lot. A flashlight and a punch were found in his pockets and a small sledgehammer was taken from his automobile parked near the apartment. He denied he had attempted to enter the building, but police are holding him for investigation.

George Borgstedt, attendant at a filling station at Sarah Street and Labrador Avenue, was held up by two armed men and robbed of $35.

Of Making Many Books

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Sees Right Through!

UNDELLERIA'S DAUGHTER AND CONSEQUENCES By John Erskine. Quotations. (Amour Press, New York City. $1.50.)

And they lived happily ever after!

Course they didn't! This lamentable fact was always quite obvious to us, even before we had the last of our milk teeth; but in the dark ages that preceded our present incandescence we used to make certain concessions of respect to the ideal, which, we grant, was quite unsatisfactory of us.

It is to be feared that this may be a mighty, naughty little book, though any attempt to justify such a confession of parental-mindedness on the part of the young critic. The text consists of nothing more than perfectly respectable and even quotations known to everybody, a single word in each being blotted out with a show of Comstockian shame that somehow fills even the innocent mind of a reviewer with unseemly thoughts.

The anonymous authors state that upon application to the Fig Leaf Department, a complete set of the quotations in their unpurgated forms will be mailed (in a plain envelope) to ministers, doctors or teachers, or to bona fide students of these professions! Thus the tender virtue of the mere layman is protected.

As a sly attack upon censorship in its holler forms, this impudent, even slapable, little book is a veritable dud.

WHAT CIVILIZATION OWES TO ITALY. By James J. Walsh, M. D., Ph. D. (Stratford Co., New York $3.)

This is a revised edition of Dr. Walsh's informative work, enumerating the contributions and originations of Italy in Painting, Sculpture, Architecture, Music, Literature, Education, Philosophy, Science and Law, and listing Italy's notable men and women. An appendix describes the work of Italian artists in the national Capitol at Washington. The new edition is dedicated to Benito Mussolini, who, as is well known, inspired much of the best work of Michelangelo, Dante, Petrarch, Marco Polo and other great Italians.

TWO BROTHERS AND THEIR BABY SISTER. By Lois Lenski. (Frederick A. Stokes & Co., New York City. $1.50.)

A more or less nonsensical story, of course. It had to be, as little boys who have ever borne the burden of amusing a bottle baby with a preposterous appetite and enormous lung power will readily grant.

And a girl baby, too—most unreasonable and entirely beyond the comprehension of practical male mind! Gosh, these women folks!

Somehow so that they could hardly be credited without the corroborating testimony of the many lively pictures.

CECIL HEADS BRITISH CHURCH COMMISSION

Board of 16 Appointed Following Rejection by Parliament of Revised Prayer Book.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, who has always taken keen interest in church affairs, has been made chairman of a commission inquiring into relations between church and state in Great Britain.

The personnel of this commission, numbering 16, was announced in the church assembly yesterday by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Its appointment follows upon the double rejection by Parliament of measures for revision of the Book of Common Prayer.

Objections were raised in the assembly that the commission did not include any of those who had opposed the revised book in Parliament, but a motion to this effect was defeated by a large majority.

The personnel church assembly had approved these measures for revision of the prayer book before they were defeated in succession by the House of Commons.

Others Named to Commission.

The commission also will include the Archbishop of York, the Rt. Rev. George Bell, Bishop of Chichester; the Rt. Rev. Henry Herbert Williams, Bishop of Carlisle; the Earl of Selborne, noted layman; the Rev. Vernon Faithful Storr, Canon of Westminster; Viscount Bridgeman, and Sir Lewis Dleden, Vicar General of the Province of Canterbury.

The Bishop of Norwich, the Rt. Rev. Bertram Pollock, one of those prominent in opposing the new prayer book when it was before Parliament criticised the composition of the commission because he found on it no representation of the book's parliamentary opponents.

Opposed By Lord Brentford.

The same objection was raised by Lord Brentford, the former Sir William Jonyn-Hicks, who had been one of the revised book's most fervid parliamentary opponents. He declared the names of the commission caused him to shudder. He did not criticize them personally, he said, but because none of the proposed members would express the mind of the laity as it was expressed by Parliament.

The Archbishop of York said he saw no reason why Parliament as such should be represented in the commission. The Bishop of Norwich moved an amendment for inclusion of some of those who had voted against the new book in Parliament, but this was lost by a large majority.

Golden Wedding Anniversary.

One of the guests yesterday at the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Lieb, was Mrs. Lieb's mother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Luetkemeyer. Mrs. Luetkemeyer is 91 years old and lives at 4223A Chestnut Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Lieb, who formerly lived for many years at 3806 Lee Avenue, now reside with a daughter at 4237 Linton Avenue.

The cast will be as follows:

The Property Man... Culver L. Hastedt. A Southern Girl... Mrs. Donald T. Wright. Ortizu... Wife of Sabus. Miss Louise Kroeger. Ortizu's Maid... Miss Jeanne C. Blithe. Ortizu's Face Powder... Percy Ramsay. Tola, a Famous Beauty... Mrs. Josephine A. Baker. The Daimon... Mrs. Arthur Ayers. Bill Jr. Mrs. Albert T. Hunter will have charge of costumes. Mrs. James Chauvin Blithe of property; and Mrs. Willard Bartlett of music.

Those who will entertain at luncheon preceding the play will include Mrs. Blair, Ridlington, Mrs. Henry S. Butler, Mrs. Frederick C. Clark, Mrs. Thomas H. Hobart, Cobbie, Mrs. Richard T. Shelton, Mrs. Andrew Strauch, Mrs. Calvin R. Lightner, Mrs. John H. Duncan, Mrs. George E. Gambrell and Mrs. Edward A. Herman.

Miss Dorothy Mudd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Mudd, 5357 Bartner avenue, whose marriage to Jere F. Sheehan, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Sheehan, 6239 Washington boulevard, will take place Wednesday, Nov. 26, will be the guest of honor at several parties this week. Thursday Miss Mary Elizabeth Costigan, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Costigan, 5135 Lindell boulevard, will be hosted at a luncheon for 28 guests at the Elgin Club in Miss Mudd's honor. Saturday Miss Lorrie Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Jones of Webster Groves, will give a luncheon at her parents' home and Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Mudd will entertain the bridal party at a dinner dance at the Missouri Athletic Association. The following evening Miss Eugenia O'Halloran and her brother, F. Neil O'Halloran, will give a buffet supper at their home, 5875 Enright avenue.

The wedding will take place at St. Rose's Church at 10 o'clock in the morning. The bride will have as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Helen Mudd. Miss Costigan and Miss Alice Sheehan, sisters of the prospective bridegroom, will be bridesmaids. Joseph Sheehan will be best man for his brother and Frank Hogan and Kenneth Saunders will be groomsmen. The usher will be F. Neil O'Halloran, Neil Parrington and James L. Mudd. A reception at the Gatehouse Hotel will follow the ceremony.

The Arts and Interests Committee of the Senior League will sponsor a series of art lectures to be given in their auditorium, 4214 Maryland avenue, Wednesday evenings during the season. Edmund H. Wuerpel is to be the speaker at each, and his subject tomorrow will be "The Primitive School of Painting."

The series began last Wednesday.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

INVITATIONS have been issued by Mrs. Anthony B. Day, 107 Aberdeen place, for a dinner at her home, Saturday, Nov. 21, in honor of her debutante sister, Mrs. Anne Wyles of Chicago, and her cousin, Miss Grace John, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones of McKittrick.

The guests have been asked to wear fancy costumes. The invitation list is limited to a group of debutantes and their escorts.

Miss Wyles will spend Thanksgiving in Chicago with her parents, returning the next day to St. Louis to spend an indefinite time with Dr. and Mrs. Day and take part in the festivities of the debutantes.

Mrs. A. E. Boyeson of St. Paul, Minn., who has been the guest of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Auguste B. Ewing, 4915 Pershing avenue, will depart to Europe for her home. Mrs. Boyeson, arrived last Wednesday and has been informally entertained at her visit here.

Miss Christine Fordyce, debutante daughter of William C. Fordyce, 19 Washington terrace, returned yesterday from a visit of a week in Little Rock and Hot Springs, Ark.

of the California citrus fruit growers as an example of agriculturalists who had formed co-operatives successfully.

"These people know just how many oranges or lemons the city of New York is in the habit of consuming on any day and any month of the year, and the flow of the commodity to market is regulated to see that the demand is properly cared for," he said.

Eugene Mayer, new governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, was guest of honor. When asked to speak, he said he did not feel "that I have been long enough in my job to entitle me to speak."

F. Abbott Goodhue, president of the Acceptance Council, told the bankers he believed the worst of the commercial depression was over, although recovery may be slow.

to voice Moslem and Hindu differences before the conference. He warned the British Government that the Indian situation was grave and called for immediate solution. Great Britain, he said, was the victim of sleeping sickness in her relations with India. Meanwhile India went on advancing under the influence of Western education.

He said that a Federal system Government alone suited India's needs. Then he voiced the Moslem demand that in the constitutional and administrative evolution of India, 71,000,000 Moslems "must have their legitimate share both in the provincial and in the Central Government."

Clashes With Lord Peel.

The first clash of passions at the conference took place today between Lord William Peel, former Secretary for India in the Conservative government and an Indian delegate.

"Absolutely bogus; absolutely bogus!" exclaimed the Indian when Peel referred to the proposed introduction of full self-government in the Indian provinces.

"I will come presently to the question of whether it is bogus," said Lord Peel with formal dignity.

Lord Peel then continued without interruption although his remarks were critical of India and of passages of the Indian delegates' addresses at the round table yesterday and today.

Referring to an Indian statement that a very small number of British-controlled-Indian affairs both in Great Britain and in India, Lord Peel said: "Do not let any man go away from this assembly with the impression that the interest in Indian affairs is confined to half a dozen men in Parliament or in the civil service."

Lord Peel, who represents the most conservative of British opinion, talked about Mahatma Gandhi's non-co-operative movement and the influence it had on the Conservative party in Great Britain.

Referring to the Gandhi followers, he said there was a party in India which would wrest the gains achieved by the delegates to the round table conference and use them "for furthering their own separatist and independent ends."

The Maharaja of Rewa, youngest of the Indian Princes, famous tiger shot and at the age of 27 already for 12 years ruler of a large central Indian state, told the round table delegates that "the state of India today is such as to bring tears to the eyes of all who love her. I am reminded on this occasion" he went on, "of the words of the great British orator Edmund Burke when the fate of another nation was in the balance: 'Magnanimity in politics is not seldom the truest wisdom, and is always the best guide to little minds go ill together.'

Committee of 22 Planned.

A definite plan looking toward federalized India was before the conference today. As soon as the present debate is concluded—probably on Thursday—there will be established a Federal Relations Committee of 22 members under the chairmanship of Wedgwood Benn, Secretary for India, in the British Government.

This committee will study the whole question of Federal Government in India, the relationship of the Indian states to British India, the relations of the British India provinces to the Central Government and the principles to be applied in the organization of an all-Indian Government. The committee will consist of six members from the British delegations, 10 from the Indian states and 16 from the British Indian delegation.

CHICAGO AID TO DESTITUTE

Governor's Commission Sets $5,000,000 Goal to Help Jobless.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—With the goal set at $5,000,000, Gov. Emerson's Unemployment Commission today began to raise money to aid the unemployed and the destitute of Cook County.

The commission has suggested that all employed workers in the county contribute a day's pay a month for six months. Philip R. Clarke, chairman, announced the management of many concerns offered to match dollar for dollar all money contributed by their employees. A general appeal to the public will follow. The sum to be solicited by welfare organizations this year has been increased to $12,000,000, according to Samuel Insull Jr., member of the commission. Registration of those out of work and in need is continuing, and the latest figures indicate the total unemployed for Cook County will well over 200,000, of which 25 per cent are in want.

Weekly Permits Ordered by State Board Without Previous Notice to City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 18.—Action of the Missouri Public Service Commission in placing the street car fare schedule here on a parity with that of St. Louis, has brought protests from city officials.

Under the new arrangement, which becomes effective Monday, the street car company will charge 40 cents for a weekly permit card, which will permit the holder to ride on the street car for 5 cents. Twelve rides for a dollar, but no one ride for eight and one-third cents, is the new schedule. One ride, without the weekly permit card, still will cost a dime. Under the new rate, the rider must ride the street car eight times a week at the new rate—40 cents for the card and 5 cents a ride—to break even with the straight 16-cent fare. Each ride over eight a week will save a fraction of a cent for the rider. It is estimated the new schedule will increase the annual revenue of the Kansas City Public Service Co. $150,000.

Marcy K. Brown, Jr., Assistant City Counselor, said the Public Service Commission had not notified the city that any action was to be taken to change the fare rate.

"It seems the commission might give the city the privilege of trying to show why such an increase should not be granted," he said.

DESCRIPTS VICTIM OF MURDER

English Pathologist Gives Scotland

Yard Clew to Burning of Man in Auto.

By the Associated Press.

NORTHAMPTON, England, Nov. 18.—Sir Bernard Spilsbury, pathologist for Scotland Yard, has "reconstructed" a murder victim largely from a tiny wad of charred clothing.

The man was sturdy built, about 35 years old, with good teeth in a small mouth and well dressed, the scientist deduced; but police still have not the slightest idea who the man was. He was killed and his body burned in an automobile on a road near here on Nov. 6, but that is all police know about it.

An attorney informed police that he had been retained to represent the interests of a woman who "might be concerned in the case." He did not give her name.

Police had found a woman's high-heeled shoe in the burning car and had at first assumed it was a woman who had been killed, but Sir Bernard dispelled that theory.

FOR STATE VOTE ON ELECTION OF ALDERMEN HERE BY WARDS

Senator Kinney to Introduce Measure in Legislature Next Year.

Seeking to gratify the desire of Democratic leaders to provide for Democratic representation in the Board of Aldermen, State Senator Kinney, Democrat, will introduce in the Legislature next year a proposal to submit to the voters of the State by the initiative an amendment to the State Constitution permitting election of Aldermen by wards.

The Charter provides that Aldermen shall be elected by wards whenever the Constitution and State laws permit. They are chosen at large now and the result has been that since the board was established in 1915 all of its members have been Republicans.

The Democrats feel sure they could elect several Aldermen from certain wards and thereby get recognition for their party and have more influence in legislation.

Some Republicans think a small opposition in the board might be desirable. A similar constitutional amendment sponsored by Kinney was defeated in 1924, not being generally understood.

What is this Ultra-Violet People Everywhere are talking about?

In the current newspapers, the magazines, in after-dinner discussions, in all walks of life one hears people talking about "ultra-violet." What is this ultra-violet? Is it new? Is it a "fad"? Is it something for the sick? Is it something for those who are well? What is it?

Ultra-violet is as old as the history of the world. It is merely a scientific name for the health-giving rays of sunshine. People everywhere, from the beginning of history, have known the benefits of being out in the sunshine.

We live in a dark dungeon with no possibility of sunlight reaching us, even though we ate good food, drank good water, and had an opportunity to exercise—should be listless, subject to ills and diseases, and completely lacking in vitality and energy. We would not die immediately because the foods we ate, having been grown in the sun, would contain the vital elements of the sun—but they would not be enough and we should gradually lose our energy, pep, and life.

While none of us live in a dark dungeon, yet most of the year we get no sunshine. In the winter we get none at all. We get little even in the summer as the ultra-violet rays will not penetrate our clothing, will not come through the smoky air of cities. We feel as well as we do only because we get a certain amount of sunshine "end-hand" through the foods we eat.

But this quantity of sunshine is not enough for our needs. As soon as the fall season comes along, our bodies lose much of their energy and their resistance against disease. This is proved by the fact that the death rate begins to increase in the fall months and by March is double that of June. Colds, pneumonia, bronchitis, and similar ills all come in the dark months of the year.

Hence there is no "fad," nothing "new," no "cure-all" in the sun-shine idea. Sunshine is necessary to our health. If we expose our naked bodies to sunshine a few minutes, a few times a week, we will build up stronger bodies, we will be able to withstand disease more strongly, enjoy life more, and live longer. People will get more out of life because they will feel better.

That's why scientists for years have been analyzing the sun's rays—trying to produce them artificially so that we could get them and Guaran...

WOMAN WHO LIVED ALONE
IN COTTAGE 38 YEARS DIES
She Never Gave Up Hope That Husband Who Disappeared

By the Associated Press.

CONWAY, N. H., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Priscilla Colbath, who lived for 38 years in the same cottage, died yesterday in the Conway Hospital. Thanks to old Ben Swinton, her only neighbor in an isolated valley in the White Mountains, the woman who lived alone for 38 years was not alone in death. Swinton for many years had

WALL STREET HEAVY START IS FOLLOWED BY RALLY IN STOCK LIST

Market Generally Above
Previous Close After Declines of 1 to 3 Points Are Erasered—Rubbers Bought Late — Trade Light.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—A cautious recovery in share prices followed in the wake of the latest reaction today.

The market recovered a substantial fraction of yesterday's losses. A further decline of 1 to 3 points in the morning was recovered, and several prominent shares closed with net gains of a point or two. The closing tone was firm. Trading was listless, transactions totalling only about 2,100,000 shares.

United States Steel, General Electric, Radio, Westinghouse Electric, Electric Power & Light and American Smelting gained about a point, and Sears Roebuck, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical and American Waterworks, 2 or more. A feature of the late trading was strength of tire and motor accessory issues. Goodyear, Goodrich 2 and United States Rubber, the Firestone issues, B.F.G.O., Murray and Electric Autolite, point or two. After selling off 3, North American rallied to close a point higher. Some of the rails were heavy. Union Pacific sold off 5, and closed 3 lower. Northern Pacific and Norfolk & Western suffered similar losses.

Grain Market Watched.
The developments in the grain markets made Wall Street a little uneasy, but the fact that net losses in wheat in the Chicago market were held to 3 to 4 cents a bushel, old contract, despite a wide open break at Winnipeg, was reassuring. With the Grain Stabilization Corporation struggling to hold the domestic market sustainable above foreign markets, however, Wall Street regarded the situation as rather uncertain. Corn declined more widely, closing 2 1/4 to 2 1/2 cents lower. Cotton lost 30 to 70 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges held about steady. A feature was strength of the Canadian dollar, which was at a premium of 1/4 cent. With the end of this month marking the turn of the fiscal year for Canadian banks, withdrawal of balances in New York may cause a flow of gold to Montreal. The Spanish peseta was again under pressure. Leading Europeans were about unchanged.

The stock market has now had a substantial technical rebound after its two-month decline, and a secondary reaction of fair proportion occurred yesterday. It now appears to be in a position to reflect outside developments rather than inside market conditions.

The day's Corporate News included announcement of the declaration of the regular stock dividends on Sears Roebuck, in addition to cash, which accounted for the strength in that issue, as there had been some apprehension that the stock disbursements would be abandoned. Some of the food stocks may have been helped by an increase in the annual dividend rate of United Biscuit from $1.60 to $2.

Copper producers still held to their recently established price of 10 cents a pound, but light, particularly domestic buying, as consumers were anxious to test the new price. Some copper was said to be available at lower prices than 12 cents, but it appeared to be metal offered for resale by speculators who had purchased at the recent price of 9 1/2 cents.

Money Little Firm.
In a survey of the commodity price situation, Standard Statistics Co. pointed out that prices have followed an unbroken downward trend for 15 months, which is roughly the equivalent of the declines in 1883 and 1921. It emphasized, however, that it did not follow for sharp, sustained advance at this pace of the movement.

Many a happy hour has been spoiled and many a hope destroyed by a condition none of us can ignore. We note its presence in others but never mention it. It is the cause of stained, ugly yellow teeth, decay and gum diseases. Authorities call it Bacterial-Mouth. The sensible way to keep teeth sparkling white and sound is to use the dentifrice that kills the germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth. That dentifrice is ... Kolynos.

cases are quickly killed. They vanish and the entire mouth is purified. Kolynos kills 10 million germs in 15 seconds, and more than 400,000,000 in 30 seconds.

This amazing Kolynos FOAM removes food particles that ferment and cause decay—neutralizes acids, washes away tartar and the unsightly mucoid coating that clouds teeth.

In 10 days the improvement will be so marked, you will never again say that sound, sparkling white teeth are a gift received only by a fortunate few.

Dentists have long advocated the Dry-Brush Technique as the one way to keep dentures full strength and keep teeth bright and strong enough to clean every tooth surface and massage gums properly. Only Kolynos permits this approved technique.

Multiples 25 Times

This highly concentrated, double-strength dental cream is unique in action. It multiplies 25 times when it enters the mouth—thus a half-inch of Kolynos is equal in effectiveness to 12 inches of the ordinary toothpaste. It becomes a surging, antiseptic FOAM that cleans teeth and gums. You can feel Kolynos work. It foams into every pit, fissure and crevice.

BANKERS ACCEPTANCES UP
$141,509,569 IN OCTOBER

Total Dollar Value Within $32,494,397 of October Record

Set in 1929.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The dollar volume of bankers' acceptances increased $141,509,569 in October to a total of $1,508,243,726 at the end of the month, the American Acceptance Council reported.

The gain brought the total volume to within $22,494,397 of the October record set in 1929 "and is a remarkably high total considering the steady drop in commodity prices during 1930 and the very heavy decline in the country's foreign trade," Robert H. Bean, secretary of the council said. "There is unmistakable evidence in this latest total," he reported, "that bankers' acceptances are now financing a larger volume of goods at this season than in any previous year and very nearly matching the volume financed at the peak of the season in December, 1929."

"There is particular interest in the gain of $43,000,000 in export acceptances as indicating an improvement in our national exports. Up to this month, export acceptances have shown very slight gains during the normal exporting months for cotton and grains and while the present total is $72,000 below the volume of October, 1929, there is now an indication that these commodities are moving overseas in considerable quantity."

The greatest gain in the current survey was shown in domestic warehouse credits, which increased nearly $5,000,000 to $234,959,000, or $15,000,000 more than a year ago. This was described as a natural gain for this type of acceptance business in October.

Acceptances based on goods stored in or shipped between foreign countries increased to $32,972, a gain for the month of $24,000,000, making the present total the highest on record for this classification.

THREE YOUTHS HELD UNDER BOND IN AUTO FATALITY

Open Verdict Returned by Coroner
in Death of Negro Woman, However.

Although a Coroner's open verdict was returned today, three youths were required to give bond pending a grand jury investigation of the death of Hattie Rosier, 57 years old, a Negro, 1226 (rear) North Taylor avenue, who died Sunday of injuries suffered Saturday night when she was struck by an automobile.

Those giving bond were Henry Kouchoukos, chauffeur, 2619 Prairie avenue; Gerald Yalkey, laborer, 3708A Aldine avenue, and Franklin Evans, 5220 Ashland avenue. The three admitted they had been riding in a borrowed automobile and that they abandoned it after the accident. They said that they stopped and aided the woman, but became frightened and left when they saw police coming.

Police testified that the woman and her companion, Edna Gilbert, Negro, 1130 North Newstead avenue, who also was knocked to the pavement, had been drinking.

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT REPORTS
TEAPOT DOME OVERESTIMATED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The amount of oil in the Teapot Dome fields of Wyoming is thought by the Interior Department to have been considerably overestimated.

A report now being prepared by the Department on the Teapot Dome field is based on an estimate of 24,000,000 barrels of extractable oil, as compared with an earlier estimate of 100,000,000, that figure by the Bureau of Mines.

The 24,000,000 figure is the same as that arrived at by geologists employed by the Senate Lands Committee which investigated the Teapot Dome scandal.

Herman Stabler, chief engineer of the conservation branch of the Geological Survey, said there had been virtually no drainage from the navy oil reserves. They have been shut down, but production has continued in the Salt Creek fields just to the north, he said.

NUDE NEGRO PAINTING BARRED

It Had Been Scheduled for Union League Club.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The New York World says that the Union League Club has refused to exhibit Antonio Salomone's life-size nude of Paul Robeson, Negro singer, after advertising it as the chief attraction of its art exhibition. The picture depicts Robeson with hands and arms uplifted in invocation.

Salomone, the World says, is of the opinion that the club used his work to exploit the exhibition and then withheld it from view because of the membership's objections to nudity and the race factor. Dr. George F. Kunz, chairman of the club's Committee on Art, was quoted as saying that the exhibition emphasized ecclesiastical and Icelandic examples and that the Robeson figure would have been inappropriate that setting.

$10,000 for Child's Death.

Mrs. Mary Rose obtained a jury verdict in the case. Judge Hartmann's court yesterday for $10,000 against F. A. Schiariti, Inc., 5-and-10-cent store proprietors.

The count of the death of her child Eileen Ross, 11 years old, in a fireworks explosion in the company's store, 3948 West Florissant avenue, June 29, 1929. The explosion caused the death of four children. At the trial the defense offered no testimony.

OHIO BANK HEAD INDICTED
FOR $223,049 SHORTAGE

President of Defense Depository at

Galion Lost Heavily in Stock Market Crash.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 18.—Three true bills containing 22 counts charging misappropriation of bank funds were returned by the Federal grand jury yesterday against James E. Casey, former president of the Citizens' National Bank of Galion, O., who, Federal officials said, admitted he was "wiped out" in the stock market crash last October.

The indictments allege misappropriation of $223,049.30 between July, 1929, and August, 1930. Assistant United States District Attorney William McDermott said Casey has admitted he lost heavily in the stock market when he was unable to meet calls for additional margin. The bank was closed after the alleged defalcations became known July 29 last.

Asks I. C. C. to Rescind Rate Order

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Eastern railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today to rescind a decision revising classified rates in Western trunk line territory. While the commission had sought partly to increase railroad earnings, the arguments said, its actual effect will probably be the opposite. The earnings in the East have "fallen so much lower during the current year as to become a matter of serious concern," the railroad representation concluded.

In every curve and sweep of its modern lines—in every detail of its new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper and unusually efficient. Due to the increased wheelbase, the lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional fleetness and grace. And the new Fisher bodies combine with this more attractive exterior appearance, a new degree of interior luxury.

The upholstery is of fine quality mohair or broadcloth, carefully tailored and fitted. The number of individual springs in the rear seat cushions has been increased by 25%. The windshield and windows have been redesigned to provide wider vision. All interior fittings—as well as the instrument panel—have been made more pleasing to the eye. A large three-spoke steering wheel adds to the ease of driving. And in the coach, both front seats are of the one-piece type, deeply upholstered for restful comfort.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism of the worm and sector type; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better and more satisfactory to the owner.

Obviously, these many improvements are responsible for a higher standard of quality than before. And they become doubly significant when you consider that they are offered in a car which provides the smooth, quiet, flexible performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—the comfort of four long semi-elliptic springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers—the safety of a gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

» » » AT NEW LOW PRICES « « «

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

JONES' RETIREMENT MEANS THAT "PROS" AGAIN WILL DOMINATE GOLF

DECISION MADE BY ATLANTAN IS PRAISED BY ALL AS 'RIGHT MOVE'

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Bobby Jones, master golfer of all time, who has retired from competition in order to make sound films, has left as a heritage a wide-open battle from the four American and British national championships he holds.

Nowhere on the horizon at present does there loom any amateur with the golfing gifts needed to duplicate Bobby's unprecedented feat of winning all four national titles in a single year. Perhaps there never will be another Jones.

The stocky Atlanta lawyer, alone among amateurs, consistently has beaten the professionals at their own game. Four times he won the American open against the best pros and amateurs in the game and the British open fell to his amazing skill.

Pro Domination.
With his retirement, it seems certain that the pros again will dominate both open tournaments, for certainly amateur ranks contain no figure even approaching Jones in shot-making ability or in steadiness under fire.

It is a coincidence, and an odd one, that in the last few months George von Elm and Johnny Goodman, the only players who have beaten Jones in the American amateur in the last seven years, both have announced. Von Elm beat Bobby in the final round at Baltusrol in 1926 and Goodman eliminated him in the first round of Pebble Beach in 1929. In every other year the Atlanta was victorious.

Press comment on Jones' decision to renounce his amateur status was almost uniformly favorable. The New York Herald Tribune called Jones' decision "most understandable, most natural."

"Who in his position would not welcome the profitable opportunity to teach golf through motion pictures?" the editorial continued. "For the Atlanta lawyer's frank facing of the amateur problem there can be nothing but profit. He prefers not to be in any twilight zone, but recognises fully the commercial application of the motion picture contract. It is a straightforward, unequivocal decision and only neither the motives nor the attitude of Mr. Jones toward golf in its commercial phase can be criticized."

The New York Times comments that Jones "with dignity, quits the memorable scene upon which he nothing common did nor mean."

Herbert H. Ramsay, president-elect of the United States Golf Association, through whom Jones' statement was made public, paid this tribute to the champion:

"He has unquestionably during his career made the greatest competitive record in the history of the game. Aside from that, though, his character and personality are such that he has become a popular world figure. His withdrawal from competition will be greatly regretted by everyone."

Retreats in England.

There were similar expressions of regret in England. Norman of Regent and Dr. Ernest of Royal and Ancient Championship Committee, said that although he was aware that Bobby contemplated retirement, he was extremely sorry to hear it. "Jones was the greatest golfer of all time," he continued, "a delightful man and a most modest champion."

Sir Ernest Holderness, who twice won the British Amateur championship, said: "It is a wise act. Most people make the mistake of retiring too late in their careers. Bobby is the tiniest golfer in the world and everyone will miss him. We hope he will return to England."

Rex Hartley, who with T. A. Torrance opposed Jones and Dr. O. F. Willing in the Walker Cup foursomes last spring, was much surprised to hear of Jones' decision. "I am very sorry Bobby has retired," he said. "He not only was the game's greatest exponent but its greatest sportsman. His absence will make the men's championship like the women's without Joyce Wethered."

Jones Invited to Play in P. G. A. Title Meet.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—After devoting most of his first season to discussion of Bobby Jones' retirement from golf, the Georgiaan invited to try for the professional title, the Professional Golfers Association of America today settled down to business.

News that "King Bobby" had decided to forsake tournaments in favor of law practice and movie contracts, caused the P. G. A. delegates to forget their own affairs yesterday to talk about Jones. A resolution was passed stating:

"Should Bobby's entrance into the movies affect his amateur standing, the professionals will look toward him with great interest at some future time in their own match play championship—the one world he has not conquered."

The election of officers will be held tomorrow.

OFFENSIVE WORK TO FEATURE AT BEARS' DRILLS

By James M. Gould.

HE'S NOT in the Army now, he'll play football and how! To get the dough he'll be a pro. He's not in the Army now.

Red Castle's on his own. He'll have to stand alone. Without the aid of the whole brigade.

When for a loss he's thrown.

Bis coaching days were brief.

And mostly filled with grief; His team was not so glad hot, And so he sought relief.

He's not in the Army now.

He'll have to earn his chow; He hopes to get rich by making the switch.

He's in the breadline now.

Like Law.

Possession of Ball is to Be Preferred—Warner.

Possession of the ball is sometimes nine points of the game.

Speaking of football reminds us of soccer. See where Phil Kavanaugh's boys took the Tablers to the cleaners.

Speaking of soccer reminds us of football. See where Joe Savoldi, who was benched in the Drake game pending an investigation into his matrimonial standing, has withdrawn from the school. Warm up another horseman?

It was thought that Drake being considered a kind of lame duck, Jones was being held out for tougher game. Truth will be served.

While the Irish were taking Drake, Rockne was scouting Northwestern. But owing to a heavy fog most of the plays were mist.

In fact Knute saw so little of the game that he said it looked just like N. W. was holding secret practice. In consequence of which, St. Louis attention. That is natural, Albie Booth of Yale can testify. So the Bears' best ground gainer must be protected and helped rather more than he has been in games played thus far.

$2,000,000 ENDOWMENT FUND OFFERED TO A. A. U., BRUNDAGE ANNOUNCES

38 RECORDS SET BY TWO WOMEN ATHLETES GET RECOGNITION

At Full Strength.

WHEN the Billikens and the Bear clash at Walsh Memorial Stadium a week from Thursday, both eleven will be at full strength. Injuries to De Christophe, Stephan, La Presta, Muellerle, and Joseph of the St. Louis team were of varying seriousness and certainly hampered the Billikens' play. At Washington, different times, Tyrell, Saussele, Watson, Butz and Vandover have been hurt. Apparently, all the casualties at both universities will have completely recovered by Thanksgiving day. Which news is welcome to the thousands who will see the annual battle royal.

Tournaments Awarded.

WHEN Len Macaulife, the College University fullback, gained four touchdownd added a field goal against Syracuse Saturday, he ran his point total to 125, which is five points better than that scored last season by Gene McEvry of Tennessee, who was high man for the 1929 season.

Macaulife appears to be very versatile. He has taken the ball across the goal line of opponents 18 times in nine games, has accounted for 24 points after touchdown and has kicked one field goal. No wonder they call him a triple threat.

Coach Hollinberry.

IN recent reference to Coach Hollinberry of the Washington State eleven, champions of the Pacific Coast Conference, it was said that Hollinberry's Alma Mater was the college he now is coaching. A correspondent from Santa Monica, Calif., writes us that Hollinberry never went to college but coached two high school teams in San Francisco and also the Olympic Athletic Club team there. Our authority for ascertaining Hollinberry to Washington State was Spalding's 1929 Football Guide, which so lists him.

Whether or not the Guide is correct in this instance, Washington State has a pretty fair country coach.

Quite a Difference.

THE Principia Junior College team was defeated by Moher last Saturday. A typographical error made the score read, "Moher 91, Principia 7." When the correct score was 19 to 7, Principia offices here were deluged with calls wanting to know "how come" the team to be beaten by so great a margin.

It is a pleasure to inform inquirers that the game really was close and that Principia put up a hard fight, as usual.

SETTERS AND POINTERS COMPETE FOR $3000 IN ANNUAL FIELD TRIALS

VINTON, Okla., Nov. 18.—With 34 setters and pointers under two years old competing, the annual American Field Futility was inaugurated here yesterday, a large audience of field trial patrons being present to see the running.

The stake is for dogs whose dams have been nominated according to the conditions of the stake and is considered the great breeders' classic of bird dog trials. A purse of $3000 goes to the winners and breeders of winners.

With 18 more dogs still to run their preliminary heats, the stake is far from decided, although in the running yesterday several dogs from the East made a good showing on game. These are Bob's Spectre Lad, owned by J. F. Lee of Cuba, N. Y., and Phil Essig's Guy, owned by Waldron, Bally of Moore City, N. C.

BOWLING OFFICIALS TO HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the Greater St. Louis Tenpin Association and the Executive Committee will be held at 12:30 o'clock Thursday, at the office of C. Howard Stewart, 1917 Olive street. At this meeting it will be decided whether or not St. Louis will make an attempt to land the 1932 American Bowling Congress championship tournament. Other business of importance also will be discussed.

ZAHARIAS, WASHBURN TO MEET AT COLISEUM

George Zaharias, 225-pound Colorado wrestler, and Jack Washburn of California, will meet in a return bout announced today by promoter Tom Potts as the semi-windup to the scheduled heavyweight engagement between Milo Steinborn of Germany, and Dick Daviscott of Los Angeles, at the Coliseum Nov. 26.

Daniels to Box Friedman.

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweight, and Al Friedman of Boston will meet in a 10-round bout for the Argonne A. A. here on Nov. 24. The Mid-Westerner was fouled by Johnny Rizzo of Cleveland here several weeks ago.

Soccer Games Wanted.

The McCaffery soccer club wants to schedule games with local teams. Recently the Dragons defeated the Shreve club, 2 to 1. For games call John Fox after 6 p.m., at Colfax 2244.

Out the Score.

The score of a Springfield Central vs. Wayne game in the Central was 38-18 in favor of Springfield.

A Story of College Athletics

By BOB ZUPKE

LONDOS TOSSES GARIBALDI OUT OF RING, WINS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Jim Londos, claimant of the world wrestling championship, spent 40 minutes at Madison Square Garden last night with his crown tottering precariously, and then in the last five minutes threw Gino Garibaldi of Rockville into a crotch and dropped him through the ropes. This seemed to anger Gino, who promptly returned and pitched Londos into a bunchful of typewriters on the opposite side of the ring.

Twice more in the next few minutes, Londos picked up the young Italian and pitched him into the audience, but the laps of the spectators saved him from serious injury.

Gino, who was known and popular in amateur sport circles throughout the United States and Europe, suddenly collapsed and lay prostrate during a caucus for a time. President Avery Brundage of Chicago, considering the convention, but he submitted to the urgencies of Boston delegates who declared MacAfee would have preferred the work to an uninterrupted.

MacAfee himself, as president of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Committee had looked forward to announcing the names of the 10 men when one will be selected to receive the Sullivan Trophy and a gold cup.

Active in the affairs of the A. A. since its organization, MacAfee was president in 1905 and 1915 and at the time of his death chairman of the important Seven Relations Committee as well as the Sullivan Memorial Committee.

He had expected to observe tomorrow by attending the annual meeting of the American Olympic Association of which he was a member.

Not even the prospect of a baton race for the presidency of the A. A. failed to stir up much enthusiasm among the delegates after the death. Indications were not received for a third term with a fight. Frank J. Walsh of Boston's opposition.

Apple cores, paper boxes and anything else the fans could lay their hands on were thrown at the ring.

Joe (Toots) Mondt was thrown in 6:57 by Herb Freeman of the Bronx.

Jando Szabo of Hungary, 200 pounds, won from George Hagen of Philadelphia, 212, in 7 minutes, 9 seconds.

The final bout between Firpo Wilcox, 225 pounds, and George Calza, 218 pounds, resulted in a victory for the latter in 26 minutes, 45 seconds.

FOUR AMERICANS DRAW HORSES IN SWEEPSTAKES

(Copyright, 1930.)

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—Three New Yorkers and one Bostonian drew horses in the official Dublin Horsemen's November Handicap Sweeps here, which, in cases where lucky ticket holders drew starters, give them a chance at winning fortunes, drawing downward from $1,000,000 for first prize.

Second prize is approximately $40,000 and third $20,000, with sizeable sums for holders of tickets for runners and certain nonstarters.

The fortunate New Yorkers and Miss Margaret Cobahan, 706 St. Nicholas avenue; Jean Baptiste Tamang, 404 West Fifty-eighth street, and A. Byron Harris, 381 Fourth avenue.

Miss Cobahan drew Brown Tony, a nonstarter, and therefore is certain to win pro rata share of approximately $120,000 to be divided among all those nonstarters.

Tamang drew Pickle, runner quoted at 33 to 1, and therefore has a chance to win one of the first three prizes, or to divide a pro-rata sum of $245,000 with other holders of tickets on starters. Harris drew Truncheon, on which no odds were quoted.

The Bostonian Morick Poirier, draw Break of Day, a nonstarter.

OIL PRODUCTION DECREASED LAST WEEK, JOURNAL REPORTS

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 18.—Another decrease was registered in the country's crude oil production last week, the daily average output as estimated by the Oil Journal, national being 2,305,524 barrels, or 95% under the figure for the week ended Nov. 8.

While most areas showed declines or small gains, Oklahoma production increased sharply, rising 16,- 865 barrels to reach 503,915. At that level, however, it still was well below the 545,000-barrel limit set by the State Corporation Commission.

The Texas Panhandle showed the largest loss, its output falling 75,649 barrels, or 9% less than the preceding week's yield. West Texas production was 276,048 barrels, a decrease of 4,845; North Central Texas at 105,402 barrels showed a decline of 2,398. Heavy oil production in Southwest Texas was down
532 barrels at 97,844 barrels.

Kansas production fell off 5750 barrels to reach 115,510. Eastern production remained unchanged at 113,000 barrels while the Rocky Mountain area showed a minor gain of 246 barrels at 101,657 barrels.

California light oil production was 315,500 barrels, an increase of 1500, and that state's heavy oil output was unchanged at 88,000 barrels.

Of the country's 9557 barrel decrease, 4,656 barrels was in light gravity oil.

HEAD THROB?

The woman who knows, would as soon start out without her purse! She always carries Bayer Aspirin.

When your head fairly throbs from the stores and crowds, reach for that little box. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and resume your shopping—in comfort. Relief is immediate.

Most people use these wonderful tablets for something! But do you know how many, many ways they can spare you needless suffering? From the discomfort—and danger—of a neglected cold. From serious consequences of a sore throat. From those pains peculiar to women. From the misery of neuralgia and neuritis.

Every druggist has genuine Bayer Aspirin. The box says Bayer, and every tablet bears the Bayer cross. Tablets thus marked do not depress the heart.

SAYS POSTAL HEADS SHOWED NO ZEAL IN LEASE INQUIRY

Former U. S. Prosecutor's Aid at St. Paul Testifies to Laying Case Before Two Departments.

By the Associated Press.
ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 18.—John K. Fesler, Assistant United States District Attorney, testified before the Senate Committee investigating Postoffice leases yesterday that the Postoffice Department exhibited no zeal in the investigation of the St. Paul commercial substation lease in 1928.

Fesler was in charge of the original investigation by the District Attorney's office. He said he made two trips to Washington to lay the case before the Postoffice Department and the Department of Justice.

Before this, in March, a Federal grand jury recommended a thorough investigation in a statement in which it was charged that the lease had involved "negligent representation and corruption," and that rent paid by the Postoffice Department was "unconscionable."

Fesler, now an employee of a local firm headed by Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State, told Senator John J. Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, chairman of the committee and only member present, that he obtained little co-operation from the Postoffice Department at Washington, and no exhibition of zeal to prove either the presence or absence of fraud.

Man Twice Found Overcome by Gas
Paul Miller, 28 years old, a laborer, was taken to City Hospital last night from a rooming house at 2400 South Broadway after other roomers reported to police that they found him overcome by gas twice during the evening. Gas was escaping from an unlighted burner in the room on each occasion. Miller declined to make a statement.

A PIECE OF HER MIND

By ELSIE MCCORMICK

SOME time when I have a little more leisure at my disposal, I am going to form a society for the Study and Practice of Ways of Eating the Pomegranate.

To my mind, fruit in all the catalog of Pomona can cause so much embarrassment to its human consumers. There seems to be no way to eat it in public without covering one's self with confusion and a juice that looks like gore.

Even if one is able to mine out the garnet seeds, there still remains the problem of disposing of the detritus which is left over after chewing. In this age, when floors are no longer covered with friendly rushes and vases are reserved for the blossoms, there is little that one can do except to choke to death with as much dignity as possible.

My last public encounter with a pomegranate occurred about a year ago, when I was talking so interestingly to a young man who could wiggle his ears that I took it from a fruit dish without realizing its unpleasing identity.

In a few moments I noted that a silence had fallen abhorrent the glittering board and that all the other guests were watching with rapt interest to see what I was going to do. For a moment I felt like a famous surgeon under the white lights of an operating theater. Then, suddenly, panic overtook me. "It's too pretty to eat," I murmured, and put it back again.

Incidentally, a wall-flower who loves music too much to increase his popularity by playing the saxophone and whose thin, artless quip right for card illusions might take up eating the pomegranate. It would be大陆上的一個小技巧 that would spread one's fame abroad, and lead to many interesting invitations.

Even when encountered in private, the pomegranate has a way of embarrassing one. Two of them are sitting up on my kitchen shelf at the present moment. I keep postponing eating them, partly because the attack is so difficult, and partly because I am intimidated by their classic history.

When I realize that Homer spoke of them—though I don't suppose he gave any directions about how to tackle them in public—and that they were used in the secret rites of the goddess Cybele, I decide that I should approachably if one is gowned in a flowing robe and a diadem.

I don't know just what to do. I might dress my hair after one of the Lysistrata models and approach them with Delian gestures. Or I might just let them stand until nature takes its course and they reach a state where they wouldn't be recognized even by Homer.

There are other fruits that were apparently made to defy civilized man, although several of them are not encountered in the temperate zone. Discussions on how gracefully to extract the seed from the juicy orange, for instance, among the pith-helmeted citizens in the tropics. I know no gentler soul who finally gives up all hope of manipulating the fruit at the dinner table and thereafter keeps his hands in the bathroom.

Dwellers on the Continent are more skilled in the surgical treatment of fruits than residents of our side of the ocean. To see a European pare and eat an apple without once touching it by hand is enough to make one bow low in awe.

In Scandinavia the devotion to cutlery is remarkable. An American who has lived in Sweden for several years told me that he has never learned just how to proceed when confronted with a knife and fork and a bunch of grapes.

I had a circular letter the other day from an organization that kindly offered to trace my ancestry for me. This is the fourth or fifth within just the past few months.

For some reason the business of hunting out family crests seems to thrive better in bad times than in good. Probably this is because during periods of depression people add up the present value of their ancestors. "Oh, heck! Money isn't everything," and then attempt a little compensation in the form of a distinguished family. There were many striking examples of this in the reconstructed South.

However, the kind ministrations of the ancestor-finders are not required in my case. I have a relative who is a crest-hunter and has already annexed an abbey in Ireland and a couple of manor houses in England, besides two or three family ghosts. All of these impressive relics probably even include the ghosts are in ruins at the moment, which of course saves explanations as to why calls are not exchanged between the two branches of the family.

Ancestor-hunters have a way of adopting castles and crests under anesthesia. I know one who told me enthusiastically of a lovely old house, dated 1683, which she had just seen in Maryland. A few years later she again described the house, but remarked in addition that it was the former home of her ancestors. The adoption had probably been achieved so painlessly that the lady, who was a Sunday school teacher, didn't realize that she was guilty of unlawful seizure.

Most families traced by crest-hunters go back eventually to William the Conqueror. I don't know just how old the Conqueror was.

There is no trimming or no ribbons—no feathers, but the brims are pinched on to the crowns with a tuck at the side or a bit of shirring at the back, so that the brim falls down about the face in a veritable frame. The brims are not full. They are flat, but because they are so utterly soft, they necessarily ripple a bit, just as though they were full.

Now a really new idea appears when the material of the suit or dress—tweed or any of the rough stuff—is taken and used for a brim facings for these soft, drapable felts. It sounds bulky, but as a matter of fact, it is as flat as any possible. It must take a lot of clever hand stitching to make it look as it does, for there isn't a ridge or a seam or a pucker visible in the entire area.

Sometimes the crowns of these hats will be shirred in little groups or bunches, thus relieving the plainness of their stretches without in any way touching on the banned area of trimming. Also two colors will be combined, as a blue with a soft muddy rose, or a blue with a pink combined with amethyst.

GENEVA, Nov. 6.

IT IS Thursday afternoon and the Assembly does not convene until five. In a downstairs room at the Hotel Beau Rivage, tea is being served to someone by someone. The unmistakable sound of a tea party is in the air; cups and conversation clinking simultaneously. A gentleman in tennis flannels walks across the lobby towards the door whence emerge the sounds of tea. It is Sir Arthur Henderson. He looks into the room. "This is the women delegates," he says. "They are the dear children and their first names are North and South and East and West."

Good Habits

THE greatest argument in favor of early habit training is that the individual only derives a maximum of service from a habit which he has learned so early that it serves him without requiring much conscious effort.

It is for this reason that it is worth while to concentrate a good deal of our attention during the first years of the child's life on such humble attainments as cleanliness, orderliness, good toilet habits, good eating and sleeping habits. Not only are these things important, but they are also present as factors in the child's health, but also they play a very definite part in his character development.

It is vital that a child does not develop a negative attitude toward any of these routine matters and that he should as soon as possible learn to go through them without friction or the expenditure of emotion.

To this end it is necessary to use all the tact and skill we have at our command. We must learn just the right mixture of friendly suggestion and the firmness which admits no refusal.

We must set about any definite training it is necessary for us to learn exactly what the many good books on the subject have to say in order that we may avoid those mistakes which are so difficult to eradicate once our mistaken training has made its mark upon the child's responses.

A set of good habits, painlessly acquired, are of inestimable advantage to the child not only throughout life, but also during those early years when the fact that he does not have to struggle with "routine requirements frees his energies for bigger and better fields of interest.

I talking of the 10 women in the Labor government in England, Mrs. Hamilton said, "They earned their places. They got right down to the job and slaved along with the men. We don't work through separate women's organizations in England. We have joined with the men, and work with them."

"It's rather a different psychology from that of the American woman who enjoys standing on her pedestal. Naturally one can't work side by side with a man, if one is on a mixed date and expecting not only to be treated as an equal but also to be admired as an object d'art."

Burning Beauty
By TEMPLE BAILEY

CHAPTER FIFTEEN.

ELT alone, Virginia was conscious of a deep sense of loneliness. She put everything in order and then with the dog and cat for company she sat by the fire with her book. She was depressed and anxious. She had come to New York with high hopes and now already Rickey was restless, worried about his book, running away from hard work. For that was it—he was tired of intensive labor. He had talked of freedom in Annapolis, and now again he talked of it. Yet no artist found freedom until he achieved what he sought.

If only she knew what he had written. She might help and suggest. But Rickey had shut her out. He would do alone what he had to do, and owe nothing to anyone for his success. That had been his attitude and she had acquiesced.

Yet—if it should not be success? She dared not think what failure would mean to her brother. He would be overwhelmed, beaten better. She had seen him in such moods in lesser matters than this big task to which he had set himself.

He must not fail! Some strange propeller drove her suddenly from the fireside to Rickey's room. His manuscript lay piled neatly on a little table. There was the title—Burning Beauty—staring up at her.

She reached out her hand to touch it, she felt like Fatima in Bluebird's chamber. She had no right to look, but she did, lifting the title page, and reading the first lines.

For a long time she stood there reading, then all at once, she gathered up the sheets and carried them with her to the front room. For an hour she pored over the pages, trying to find some hint of what she had expected of Rickey's genius and finding nothing.

Oh, this couldn't be Rickey's beautiful story. The plot was there, the idea as she had outlined it that day by the river. But the treatment was commonplace, the style utterly without distinction. The words glowed or sparkled. Rickey's manuscript was worthless. No editor would look at it.

The white sheets fluttered to the floor and lay piled about her. The fire died down. The little dog and the pussy cat were heavily asleep. Outside the snow fell heavily. The night was very still.

Oh, what was he going to do about it? For something must be done. Rickey must not go on. You keep him from it, radiant. "It's McMillan. He's asked if he can come over. He needs a serial and friends to look at mine."

"Who?"

"You will like him," he said.

She planned eagerly. "You shall have him all to yourself. I'll go up after tea and sit with Little Roger. He isn't well, and his mother has work to carry home."

So exultant and eager was Rickey that he sent her off that very morning to buy the gold lace gown. She protested, but he insisted. "For the moment we are kings and queens, Jinny. The world before us."

As she rode downtown, Virginia had a sense of panic. What if Rickey refused to listen to advice? What if he blamed Michael, blazed out at him as he had, when others found fault with him. But surely he wouldn't. It would mean so much to him to have Michael's opinion, his advice. She tried to console herself with that.

When the lovely gown arrived late that afternoon, Tony Bleecker was there, and insisted that the box should be opened.

"Try it on," he said, as she held it up in all its gorgeous and glitter.

"Not now. You'll see me in it later."

But when Rickey added his entreaties she went into his little room to change, calling back over her shoulder, "You'd better have all the lamps lighted. Evening things look awful in the daytime."

When at last she appeared, the two men stared at her. She was like some delicate figure in gold and ivory. Anthony on her feet. He had found the bowl in Italy. "Ever since I met you I have wanted you to have it," he told Virginia.

She had been breathless when he entered, but his manner put her at ease. "It was good of you to call me up. I was bored to extinction, with nothing in the world I wanted to do."

The old room seemed filled with sunshine and fragrance. "I hardly dared call you. You are such a boy."

"I am never too busy when you need me," he, too, was aware of sunshine and fragrance.

At first they talked about the place where he had found the villa above Naples. "I was running through on the day the house was sold, and everything in it. I bought the house, for a song, and kept the servants. This was the only thing I brought back. But I like to think that over there all those lovely things are waiting."

"Waiting for what?" He was standing beside her, and now he put his finger under her chin and forced her to look up at him. "Don't you love me a little bit?"

"No," her clear glance was unwavering.

"I don't believe it . . . you are blushing, Virginia."

"I know. But it isn't what you think. It's only—that this is my first proposal."

He laughed. "I commend your honesty. Only a beautiful woman would dare make that admission."

"Why not make it if it is true?" "All the better then—for me . . . She drew away from him. "Let's not talk about it."

"Because I belong to myself and not to you."

Yet even as she said it, she knew that she did not belong to herself. For now there was—Michael.

"Why not?"

TO young men, ruddy with the glow of health, sat on the curbings in front of a small Hollywood restaurant the other day, reading a price list quoting odds on gambling with death. The list ran as follows:

Albatross Change—Jumping from one plane to another $100

Airship Going Down in Spin to Crash—Smoke pots for fire 1,200
Airship spinning down on (does not crash) 50
Blow airship up in midair, pilot leaves in parachute 1,500
The young men scanned the items in silence. They had done most of those things, some of them time and again, and lived to tell the tale. Now they were through—at least one of them was, and the other was just then dickering with a picture studio for employment as a technical director, with the hope of quitting the game.

They were stunt men, aces, at the top of the heap—Duke Rush, partly deaf, suing for $25,000 damages. She had been injured in an automobile smash-up. Miss Rush is who was dive into a pool of blazing gasoline for Anna Q. Nilsson in "Flowing Gold." At least it appeared to be a pool of gasoline, but in reality was a tank with a wooden partition extending down into the water for a foot or two. On one side the fuel had been poured and ignited. On the other side was clear water. Miss Rush plunged through the blaze, went under the partition and came up on the clear side with no injury other than scorched hair and eyelashes. After doubling for other stars in aquatic stunts she retired from the game. It didn't pay.

Virginia was not so sure of it. Often these young critics failed when it came to creative work. Rickey could talk glibly enough of the way a thing should be done, but it did not follow that he could do it. However, he would do his best, for Virginia's sake if for no other reason. She was so wistfully dependent on him, so in need of advice and co-operation. In that moment he threw all doubts to the wind. He would be her friend. Why look beyond friend ship?

The next morning when the telephone rang, Rickey answered, and turned from it, radiant. "It's McMillan. He's asked if he can come over. He needs a serial and friends to look at mine."

When at last she appeared, the two men stared at her. She was like some delicate figure in gold and ivory. Anthony on her feet. He had found the bowl in Italy. "Ever since I met you I have wanted you to have it," he told Virginia.

She had been breathless when he entered, but his manner put her at ease. "It was good of you to call me up. I was bored to extinction, with nothing in the world I wanted to do."

The old room seemed filled with sunshine and fragrance. "I hardly dared call you. You are such a boy."

"I am never too busy when you need me," he, too, was aware of sunshine and fragrance.

At first they talked about the place where he had found the villa above Naples. "I was running through on the day the house was sold, and everything in it. I bought the house, for a song, and kept the servants. This was the only thing I brought back. But I like to think that over there all those lovely things are waiting."

"Waiting for what?" He was standing beside her, and now he put his finger under her chin and forced her to look up at him. "Don't you love me a little bit?"

"No," her clear glance was unwavering.

"I don't believe it . . . you are blushing, Virginia."

"I know. But it isn't what you think. It's only—that this is my first proposal."

He laughed. "I commend your honesty. Only a beautiful woman would dare make that admission."

"Why not make it if it is true?" "All the better then—for me . . . She drew away from him. "Let's not talk about it."

"Because I belong to myself and not to you."

Yet even as she said it, she knew that she did not belong to herself. For now there was—Michael.

"Why not?"

pony onto a swaying boxer, and all those things."

"Good work," remarked Duke.

The two began recalling the names of the daredevils who finally miscalculated or slipped and were quietly buried. One by one the daredevils had been picked up by death, disease, accident, or had to follow other vocations.

"Not that they lost their nerve—they never do that, the real stunt men. But those who survived found that risking their necks did not pay.

Leo Nemis, one of the old gang who drove a motor cycle 65 miles an hour into an automobile and was catapulted over the hood for Leatrice Joy in "Manslaughter," quit stunting to become an aviator, and now is technical director of flying at one of the studios.

"Leo's got a rubber nose," said Duke. "Bobby goes occasionally, if there is enough money in it, and so does Harvey Perry. But casting directors do not want to pay what a stunt is worth, and there are some which they just can't get done at all. There have been a number of cases where extras trying to attract attention to themselves have offered to do dangerous things for small sums, then backed out at the last minute, thus holding up production to some professional could be found. It's that kind of thing that has killed our business."
